In April of 1996, a former business partner "Dennis" and I "Jason" were coming back from a meeting in Pensacola, Florida on a week night, heading for home to Largo, FL. We left Pensacola around midnight. We arrived in Tallahassee approximately 4:00 am. I stopped and asked a policeman at a convenient mart to give me directions to a road that would take us from interstate 10 to U.S. 19, so that we could avoid the rush hour traffic that we would have encountered later in the morning if we had continued via the interstate.

Approximately 15 minutes into the ride, out of Tallahassee, going south bound on a road that bordered the east side of Apalachicola State Forest is where this experience took place.

I had just reached down to turn off the radio because the stations were out of range for good reception, when I saw something on the right side of the road. At about 100 yards is when I first saw it and we were traveling at about 55 mph. I immediately took my foot off of the accelerator and covered the brake in case it was an animal that might move onto the road. I then clicked my high beams on and this thing lifted its head from a downward position to look our way.

It was squatting behind the top of a pine tree that had fallen through the forest right up next to the road and looked like it might have been picking through something like a bird's nest. The next moment, at about 50 yards, "she" stood up and put her hands in front of her face to block my headlights and started walking back words and I knew it was a female "something" because of the long pendulous breasts that were swinging back and forth on her chest.

What I could see of her face was just for a moment and it seemed she had a terrified expression. Besides of the breasts catching my attention, I was amazed at the palms of her hands, because they seemed to look strikingly similar to a human. And each finger and thumb was stained with a dark purplish color and the same color was on the tip of her nose. Her coat of hair/fur was blonde in appearance, at least in the lighting of my headlights. Her head seemed unusually small for the size of her body and was set low between her very broad shoulders almost as if she didn't have a neck. Her face looked so bizarre to me that I can't think of any mammal that looks like it. The best I can describe it is like a cross between a chimp and a pit bull.

I could see very light colored skin in between some of the matted fur/hair on her body and could clearly see skin around the eyes, forehead, and cheek bones. I couldn't see any color to her eyes, but they glowed like cats' eyes do when light is shown in them and they were very large in diameter. She did have a classic hour glass figure. Very small waist in relation to the chest and hips. Not very much body fat, in fact, she seemed very defined in her muscles. I remember seeing striations of muscles in her forearms, upper arms, and shoulders. Her arms weren't really big, just defined.

When she was walking back word, I noticed that her gait seemed to have a waddle to it, as if she were squatting a bit and knock knee, kind of like how Groucho Marx would do that goofy walk, but just back words. It also was amazing how big her hips were, about as wide as her shoulders. I'm 6' 4" and I know she was at least 6' 8" maybe closer to 7'.

As I was coming to a complete stop, just a few yards past her, we were so close to her that if Dennis had the window rolled down, he could have reached out and grabbed her arm. That's how close we were!! I passed her at about 20 mph before we stopped. As we passed her, Dennis got a good view of her that I didn't see since I was driving. He told me that a few seconds after we had passed her, as he was looking back through the window, he witnessed her leaping from a standing position approximately 20 to 30 feet horizontal, 10 to 15 feet vertical and then landing into a full blown sprint through the sand pine forest.

The reason Dennis had such a good view of this was because my rear taillights were illuminating the forest from having the brake on. And sand pine forests in Florida don't have much undergrowth over 2 feet high and the branches on the trees don't start until around 20-30 feet off the ground. So he said he had a very clear view of this creature. He also told me that he never seen anything run that fast!
